With Halloween right around the corner, everyone is trying to come up with their best spooky car stories for this popular, candy-filled holiday. There are several spooky horror stories that everyone should think about sharing at their next get-together.

High Beams

One night, there was a girl driving her car home from Senior High School. She lived about eight miles away. She used the car to get back and forth with me home in school. That night, she had driven into town to see the high school basketball game. Now, she was on her way home.

As she pulled away from school, she noticed that a truck was following her out of the parking lot. The car seemed to follow her through every twist and turn. Periodically, the driver would turn on the high beams. This made the girl uneasy.

Eventually, the driver even followed her into her driveway. When she got out of the car, she screamed to anyone who would listen, “call the police!”. The driver of the other vehicle got out of the truck with a gun. He pointed the gun at the girl’s car. It turned out that there was someone else in the girl’s car. He was waiting for the perfect opportunity to kill her. In reality, the driver of the other vehicle saved her life.

Junk Car

There was a family with two older boys. The older boy joined the army. When he did, his younger brother got the car. One night, the family got a devastating news. The older brother had been killed in action. The younger brother was furious. Every night, he would get in the car and drive off. One night, he had way too much to drink and drove off, not caring where he ended up.

The younger brother was a habitual smoker, and, one night, he dropped a cigarette in his lap. He jumped, but he took his eyes off of the road. His car slid into a ditch. He was knocked out.

When he woke up, he didn't know where he was. He felt like he saw visions of his older brother yelling at him to get out of the car. He got out of the car as quickly as he could and try to light another cigarette. His older brother blew it out.

Eventually, he heard sirens. He felt like people were putting him on a stretcher. He asked the emergency responders for a cigarette. One of them responded, "I wouldn't do that. If you lit a cigarette, you would be dead."

Personal Time

One night, a young couple went to a remote area time to have some personal time. Later, they went back to the car. They turned on the radio and heard there was a madman on the loose, who had broken free from the local insane asylum. The boyfriend went out and locked the doors.

The girlfriend waited for a long time and eventually heard someone tapping on the window next to her. When she turned to see who it was, she saw an elderly gentleman laughing, with the head of her boyfriend in his hands. She screamed and closed her eyes. When she opened them, her boyfriend's head had been replaced with her car keys
